With gratitude for the life and legacy of our late Membership Guild chair, Robert Stewart, whose binder of information provided the inspiration for the Guide to the First Existentialist Congregation. Our thanks extend as well to the Stewart family, to Robert's wife, Carol, who donated his binder to the First Existentialist Congregation of Atlanta. From Carol, through Marsha Mitchiner and Patton White, the binder came into the hands of the Membership Guild.

We wish to acknowledge and thank all the people who contributed time and expertise to the project.

Thanks go to Dr. Jean Heinrich for the History of Our Congregation, and to Dr. Linda Bell who compiled the foundational works in the bibliography and contributed her own publications.

Thanks also to Edi/th Kelman of the BiRacial History Project and to the descendants of the early Edgewood/Candler Park African-American community, members of the Antioch East Baptist Church, for their work in bringing to light and sharing this deeper history of the neighborhood and our remarkable sanctuary known as the Old Stone Church.

The other Membership Guild members, Susan Rawlston, Sue King, Laura Hontgas, and Mary Howard filled in the remaining contents of this guide. Our Congregational Minister, Marsha Mitchiner; our Office Manager, Edith Covington; our Board members; and Outreach Coordinator, Sara Drew, gave the input and advice necessary to complete this Guide.
